

The Difficulty in Laurens.
FATAL AFFRAY IN LAURENS.—Private letters received in this city, yesterday, from Newberry, state that a difficulty occurred in Laurens, on Thursday, while members of the State Constabulary were attempting to arrest a Tennesseean. Shots were exchanged, and it is rumored that the two constables were killed and other parties wounded.—Joe Crews among them. There are many rumors afloat, and much excitement. Several colored persons, who had arrived in Newberry, report that four of their race had been killed. The conductor of the freight train, which left Newberry at 4 o'clock, reports that a crank car had arrived at Helena from Laurens, with young Crews aboard, who asserted that one white and four colored men had been killed, and that his father had disappeared. Constable Hubbard has been furnished with the following information by one of his deputies:
"About half past 11 o'clock, on Thursday, a party of 100 armed men proceeded to the residence of Mr. Jos. Crews, in Laurens, where a number of arms belonging to the colored militia were deposited, and carried them off. Deputy Constable Tyler and Kulo, who were in charge, were killed. It is reported that Volney Parrott, another deputy, was wounded. Deputy Constable F. D. Leche is said to have been hung on the roadside.—Crews ran off, but was pursued. The arms were carried off."—Phenix.

COLUMBIA, October 21.—Laurens will give forty majority for Scott, but at least eight hundred fraudulent votes were cast by boys and repeaters.
The day of election in Laurens passed off quietly enough, but a row occurred on Thursday, after the United States troops had left the place. It seems that the constables tried to arrest a Tennesseean named Johnson, who resisted the arrest. This caused a fight.
A messenger who brings the news to Governor Scott says that five white men and three negroes were killed. The white men are named Tyler, Lowry, Frost, Leahy and Kulo. Several of the persons reported killed, if not all of them, were constables. Rumor says that Jos Crews was shot in the leg, but escaped into the woods. A man named Powell was wounded, and is supposed to have been killed.
The Governor is trying to get the United States soldiers to return to Laurens. If they cannot do so, the Governor will send up the white militia from Columbia.
The negro militia are assembling to night at this place.
The Governor has telegraphed to the Secretary of War, and to General Terry, for troops. There is intense excitement here.
Last night, a Reform negro, living ten miles from Columbia, was burnt out by the Radicals. His house with his crop in it was burned, and his family barely escaped with their lives.
United States Commissioner Janney issued today five warrants for fraudulent voting in Columbia, also one yesterday. The accused are all negroes. Fifty-three other cases are ready for him, and many others will be found to-night.
In Spartanburg the total vote was 3500, of which 2250 are Reform—giving a Reform majority of twelve hundred and fifty.

THE FIRING ON SATURDAY NIGHT.—We have been asked the origin of the outrageous firing that took place on Saturday night last. We learn that certain State arms are deposited in the College Chapel, outside of the College grounds. Upon the assumption that these arms would be seized by the whites, Adjutant General Elliott put a guard of colored militia around the building. Two United States soldiers, in charge of United States property near the College, passing by, were fired upon. The firing was taken up by the raw levies, until about 125 shots were fired. Fortunately no lives were lost. But this does not excuse the outrage of endangering the peace of this community by placing arms in the hands of irresponsible colored men, under no proper control. If the authorities desire law and order, they must begin at home. We desire the prevalence of peace, but we desire also to show where the responsibility rests for acts inconsistent with it.—This guard, who fired right and left, up and down, and seemed so terribly alarmed, are paid, we are told, $4 per day, and $4 per night, for their services.—Phenix, 25th.

THE RED MEN ARE COMING.—Fifty-one Indians have lately been naturalized as citizens of the United States at St. Paul, Minn. It strikes us that this naturalization of native Americans is superfluous; but at all events the red men are coming to the ballot-box with the black men and the white men. Next we shall have the Mongolians, "the heathen Chinee," or, in other words, the yellow men.—And why not? White, black, red, and yellow men, let them come. But the women? Let the women "tarry at Jericho till their beards be grown."—N. Y. Herald.

The Louisville Courier Journal says: General Breckinridge and General Banks met the other day at the Burnet House in Cincinnati. The two had not met for ten years. They were young members of Congress together fifteen years ago. They are old friends. Both were leaders in the great civil war, but on opposing sides. They met, after all the vicissitudes of the last decade, cordially, and Banks is now at Lexington, the guest of Breckinridge. The illustration is as pleasant as it is instructive, and ought to show the red-hot chips that there is not nearly so much fire and brimstone among sensible people as they think.

A singular fatality occurred in England recently. A fly, after having been upon a poisoned fly paper, alighted upon a lady's nose, upon a spot where there had been a slight scratch, leaving a fresh open wound. The wound almost immediately became inflamed, and in a short time the whole system was affected, and the lady died in twenty-four hours.

A Tale of Horror.
Last week's Saginaw Republic says: It has been known for some time that a dirty, wretched old man lived outside the city, about a mile or so, in a filthy little cabin, entirely alone, and that he was a hermit. No one ever went near him, for it was said he was a magician. His only companion was a miserable-looking dog. He came into the city sometimes to beg, and would piteously implore for money, stating that he was starving. Sometimes he would gather rags or scraps of paper and sell them. Every one supposed him to be wretchedly poor. He had an evil look, and mothers would remove their children when they saw him coming. One day last week, however, a child, the son of Mr. Abraham Skinner, went out alone to fish in the stream, and happened to wander on until, before he knew it, he came to the hovel of the man. At first he was frightened, but seeing no one around, he plucked up courage and went nearer. Everything was silent. He went and peeped through a crack in the side of the hut. He almost screamed at what he saw, for he beheld the old man bending over a bag of money that he was counting. There were other bags beside him containing large quantities of money. Mr. Skinner's son was so terrified that when he attempted to move he stumbled. Like lightning the old man rushed out and seized him. "Ha," he screamed, "I've caught you, have I? You saw me, did you? Well, now you'll pay for it." And before Mr. Skinner's son could say a word, the old monster, with an awful laugh, drew out a knife, and cut the child's tongue out. Then he chopped off his fingers.—"Now," he said, "now you can go, for you can't tell." The poor boy ran to his father's house, only to fill them with consternation. What was the matter with their child? He could not speak to tell them! He could not write, for his fingers were cut. Still the poor boy, after efforts of the most horrible pain, managed to fix a pencil between his bloody stumps of fingers and wrote the awful tale! A party was immediately organized and hastened to the miser's den. He was at the door as they approached, and fired a revolver six times at them, wounding two of the party seriously. Mr. Skinner returned the fire, and the aged villain fell, with a piercing yell, mortally wounded. "My money—my money!" he moaned, "my beautiful money!" and he crawled to his bags of gold and sank upon them—a corpse! Over $10,000 was discovered, which was presented to the poorhouse and other charitable institutions. The event will never be forgotten by our citizens. The child is slowly recovering. The miser was buried the day after and the hut was torn down.

The Governor was waited upon by several of our citizens, yesterday, and the condition of affairs seriously discussed. He expressed his earnest desire to preserve the peace, and promised to do all in his power to accomplish that end. The colored guard in charge of the State arms has been removed, and the care of them turned over to the United States soldiers. Drilling and parading of colored companies, at a late hour of the night, has also been prohibited. The correspondent of the Charleston News refers as follows to this subject:
"Last night upon receipt of the news from the disturbance in Laurens, the negro companies of this city—or some of them—turned out, and posted sentinels about the State House. These the Governor had not authorized; and so soon as he learned it, issued orders for them to disperse. I have certain information that the Governor has issued an order forbidding all parading (without direct orders from him) in the streets, and has ordered the arrest of any of these militia men who shall appear in uniform upon the streets of Columbia. Last night at the fire (burning of Mr. Davis' house) some of the colored militia were seen to hold up cartridges, saying that they (the cartridges) were the best peace-makers. This was related to Governor Scott, and received his unqualified condemnation."
We are informed that the Captains of the different militia companies in this District were served with an order from the Governor, yesterday, requiring them to return the arms issued to them. This is a move in the right direction, and will tend materially to allay the excitement. It is presumed the order has been extended throughout the State.

Iron sails may stand the flames, but won't float in case of a freshet. A man in Virginia had one containing the earnings of years, and wouldn't leave it. His wife wouldn't leave him, and their seven children wouldn't leave her, and so the whole family were swept away.
